Introduction

Janmitram is a voluntary, non-profit making, non-political, and non-religious organization working in selected districts of Chhattisgarh state. It is working with community and government for development and welfare of rights of the poor and disadvantaged groups, in both rural and urban areas.

Janmitram came in existence in the year 2000 with an aim and object for providing services to poor, weaker and marginal section of society, including women, and to strengthen them through education, training, vocational rehabilitation and self reliance. The organization works without any discrimination of caste, creed, sex, age, religion and community. The headquarter of the organization is located in Raigarh, Chhattisgarh.

In October 2002, Organization got legal legitimacy after registration under Societies Registration Act of Chhattisgarh state. Soon after registration it was given responsibilities for preparation of micro plans of village forest committee/forest protection committees constituted under joint forest management scheme of government of Chhattisgarh.

Organization has three distinct divisions that shoulder different kind of responsibilities. Project implementation division carries out day-to-day operations of long-term project and is looked after by Dr. M.G. Goswami. Dr. Ranjeet Barik heads research and Evaluation division. He has six years experiences of survey activities that enable him to shoulder the responsibility of conduct short term assignments related to survey, PRA, training programs (capacity building and skill up gradation), Micro planning, monitoring and evaluation etc.

Miss. Ritu Sharma (MA (Sociology), M. Phil, SLET) heads social services division. This division is successfully addressing social issues. Social services division emphasizes on Peoples rights, women empowerment child Labor etc.

We are affiliated with Chhattisgarh Voluntary health association, (CG-VHA) and Indian social action forum (INSAF)

Women health and Awareness Week at Girls Arts and Commerce Collage, Kharsia : (January 20-22, 2003)

Gender discrimination and Gender inequalities persists all over in India and Chattisgarh is not an exception. Due to poverty, Lack of basic services, malnutrition and ignorance; women face peculiar situation of neglects in social life. Only way to avoid such situation is to let the women know about her rights, her true necessities and to enable them to bring about her own welfare.

With such an approach, Women health and awareness week was organized at Girls Arts and Commerce Collage Kharsia, in between 20-22 January 2003.

On the inaugural day, Hon. Dr. Mrs. Kakoli Patnayak gave her speech on women health and hygienic. Dr. Patnayak, who herself is an icon of a self sufficient and aware women of new age, emphasized on the nutritional requirements of women. However, She has also given some beauty tips to enthusiastic girls.

Discussion on women rights and related legislation was organized on next day. Miss Ritu Sharma, (Director Social Services, Janmitram) was there to discuss the matter. Social evils like dowry, women discrimination and other relevant topics, which are still haunting women cause in modern era, dominated the session.

On 22nd January, District level essay competition was organized at similar venue. Topic essay was "Indian Women in 21st Century". Competition was commenced in two categories- collage and School level. 39 boys and girls participated in competition. Miss Sharda Patel was Chosen first as Miss Nitu Agrawal stood Second in Collage level. In School level, Mr. Arjun Devkurrey and Mr. Sukhdeo Ram were selected first and second respectively.

It was a questionnaire survey . it was to find out extent of the causes of forest degradation under joint forest management . We have successfully conducted our program and submitted our report to Guru Ghasidas university , Bilaspur, Forestry department

3. Project Implementation Division

This division of Janmitram is responsible for execution/implementation of project assign by various government and non-government agencies. Achievements of this division in the year 2002-04 are as under.

(3.1)Micro-planning of VFC/VFCs of Raigarh and Jashpur forest division

It is a well-known fact that forest resources are shrinking day by day despite of repeated efforts of government and environmentalists. In later stages it was established that sustainable management and protection of forest could only get success when these people get participation in forest management. With such an approach, joint forest management scheme has been started in Chattisgarh state.

Village forest committees and forest protection committees have been constituted to ensure grater participation of peoples in forest management. Forest department is willing to make these committees as a strong forum for community and infrastructreul development of these villages. This will need a intensive planning at micro level.

We conducted 11 intensive survey campaign including six villages of Jashpur and five villages in Raigarh forest division for preparation of micro plans. It was an interactive survey based on PRA ( Participatory Rural Appraisal) and PANR (Participatory Appraisal of Natural Recourses).The object of PRA and PANR was to bring about an understanding and learning from villagers. This was to put foreword their points of view about any issue and enabling then to do there own analysis, identification of problems and to let them search there solutions. This created a sense of belonging and dependence of each other for development. We have successfully conducted the program and submitted report to respective DFOs.

(3.2)Renewable energy sources.

It is worst kept secret that conventional energy sources are drying day by day ,and sooner or later ,they will be no longer available. Besides conventional energy sources are creating hazards for environment and chiefly contributing to global warming. in forest dominated district of Raigarh, fuel-wood extraction from forest is one of the main responsible factors for degradation fo the forests, as evidenced by case study , conducted by JANMITRAM.

With affiliation to CREDA ( Chhattisgarh Renewable Energy Development Authority) JANMITRAM has started a movement to rise awareness about alternative sources of energy , and has been successfully installing “Unnat Chulha”, domestic Gobar gas plants along with solar equipment. We have kept our target to install 200 Gobar-gas plants in the year 2003

(3.3)New agronomic practices

Conventional method of farming and inconsiderate introduction of modern technologies viz. Chemicals, is reflecting in reduction of productivity and degradation of soil. This will pose a great danger before innocent farmers. Our experts are trying to create awareness among farmers for new agronomic practices having a “Biotechnological approach”. Our project for research and technological extension about VAM, vermiculture and organic farming is under consideration of CG-COST( Chhattisgarh Council of Science and Technology). Projects having similar aspects of agro-forestry and medicinal plants are under consideration in commissonrate , Tribal Welfare Department of Chhattisgarh.
